

Analyst (STEM Education Projects)
1 Year Fixed-Term Contract

Are you:

- Passionate about education, with a degree in Maths, Science or a related subject?
- A skilled researcher, able to find, evaluate and draw connections between sources and to maintain focus on project objectives and research questions?
- Adept at producing clear, concise and analytical written reports, with excellent attention to detail?
- An excellent communicator, able to give confident and well-structured presentations, engage with project stakeholders, and run efficient and productive meetings?
- Well organised, able to organise your time and work across multiple projects in tandem to meet deadlines?
- Fluent in English?

Would you like to:

- Forge a career in a dynamic, progressive organisation by providing expert advice on international qualifications and skills?
- Develop specialist knowledge of the UK and international education systems?
- Contribute positively to the understanding, development and quality improvement of international qualifications?

...then we would like to hear from you.

Who we are and what we do:

Ecctis delivers a wide range of services, products and projects in the field of international education. We help make sense of international qualifications and support a range of clients including individuals, universities and colleges, awarding bodies and government ministries.

The work is varied and the atmosphere is enthusiastic, collegiate, and supportive. There are opportunities to develop specialisms and to lead research and training for countries and regions.

The role:

As an Analyst, you will work as part of our International Research team to support delivery of international projects, with a particular focus on STEM education. Such projects are typically designed to support wider stakeholder understanding and recognition of international qualifications, inform further programme development, or guide educational reform.

The role will typically involve research, in-depth comparative analysis, and evaluation of international curricula, learning outcomes and assessment in maths, science and allied subjects

This will involve detailed document analysis as well as some primary research, for instance drafting and analysing surveys to teachers and students, or holding focus groups. As such, the ideal candidate would be able to work independently and enjoy reading for detail, whilst also being able to synthesise findings into high quality, concise and accessible reports to meet the needs of different audiences.

Training will be given but candidates should already possess strong analytical writing skills, clear capacity for problem-solving and ideally at least two years' experience in a research, qualitative analysis or teaching role.

Ecctis Limited offers excellent opportunities for promotion and career development. There are opportunities to develop specialisms, to lead projects and to develop and provide external training.
